Welcome to the February 2022 issue of the North Baddesley 'Adult Community Activities Bulletin', produced by the Parish Council with Sustainable Communities. The Purpose of the Adult Bulletin is to raise awareness of all the opportunities available for those 18 years old, plus.

It is true you will see that some items are repeated, this is because the Bulletin is not as widely distributed and read as we would like, and of course Covid has muddied the waters, so this gives those who missed the previous issue a second bite of the cherry and another opportunity to get 'Expression of Interest' forms in; if you wish to skip items you have seen before simply go to the last page and select from the Index. You can view back issues on the Parish Council website.

Any Activity Group or individual may provide appropriate information for this bulletin, which should be emailed to David Knight (PCC) by the 15th of any month. The information can include pictures and text, of course respecting all data protection laws. Please send in Word, with no text boxes, for sliding around purposes.

There will be no advertising in this Bulletin for the foreseeable future.

It is envisaged that this Bulletin will be updated on the Parish Council Website, social media sites, and via limited hard copies at specific 'Drop Points', Hairdressers and surgeries etc within the boundaries of North Baddesley.

For those who do not wish to look at repeated items one can simply scroll to the Index on the last page and make your choice or download a copy in PDF and load to 'Flipbook for PDF' files in Windows 10, to turn pages with a click or two.

To get put in touch with an opportunity fill out the 'Expression of Interest' Form at the end of the Bulletin to let us know of your particular interest(s) and ideas.

We are subject of course to the whims of the Virus still, so any activity will only take place once it is safe to do so.

‘Become a ‘Communitier’ and make a difference.

Let’s first clear up the mystery. A ‘Communitier’ is a member of the community who gives their time, expertise, and experience to the rest of the community, where it is applicable and appropriate, to help make a difference.

Make costumes and build scenery

Breaking it down further for example, one might enjoy working with young people to afford them every chance for good employment and a successful and healthy life; you might like to go into residential homes or hospitals to read to residents and patients or help older folk to learn how to use the computer.

Work with young people as a Youth Support Worker – Gain qualifications

Could you set up a Reading Programme, teach guitar, run a Ukulele group, or help with IT skills?

Teach or assist with Apprenticeships.

Why not give it a social arm also, whereby Communitiers might hold events, social evenings etc.”, sounds like a winner. Good, all you need to do is volunteer and help make a difference, don’t let all that experience and your qualifications and skills languish and rust, get busy!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

Help make movies and documentaries

Roadside and forestry improvements

Netball

*** If you would like to join the Netball programme run by England Netball's top Coach Rose Johnston, simply fill out the Expression of Interest form at the end of this Bulletin. Rose hopes to meet with you in March 2022, in order to start sessions in April 2022.

Ref: <https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Netball> - 22nd

October 2021

If you know nothing about the game or would like to learn more about Netball, read on!!

Netball is played by more than 20 million people in more than 80 countries. Major domestic leagues in the sport include the Netball Super league in Great Britain. In 1995, netball became an International Olympic Committee recognised sport.

Games are played on a rectangular court with raised goal rings at each end. Each team attempts to score goals by passing a ball down the court and shooting it through its goal ring. Players are assigned specific positions, which define their roles within the team and restrict their movement to certain areas of the court. During general play, a player with the ball can hold on to it for only three seconds before shooting for a goal or passing to another player. The winning team is the one that scores the most goals. Netball games are 60 minutes long.

Its development, derived from early versions of basketball, which began in England in the 1890s. By 1960, international playing rules had been standardised for the game, and the International Federation of Netball and Women's Basketball (later renamed the International Netball Federation (INF)) was formed.

History

Netball emerged from early versions of Basketball and evolved into its own sport as the number of women participating in sports increased.

The first codified rules of Netball were published in 1901 by the Ling Association, later the Physical Education Association of the United Kingdom. From England, netball spread to other countries in the British Empire. Variations of the rules and even names for the sport arose in different areas: "women's (outdoor) basketball" arrived in Australia around 1900 and in New Zealand from 1906, while "netball" was being played in Jamaican schools by 1909.

From the start, it was considered socially appropriate for women to play netball; Netball's restricted movement appealed to contemporary notions of women's participation in sports, and the sport was distinct from potential rival male sports. Netball became a popular women's sport in countries where it was introduced and spread rapidly through school systems. School leagues and domestic competitions emerged during the first half of the 20th century, and in 1924 the first national governing body was established in New Zealand.

Representatives from England, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and the West Indies were part of a 1960 meeting in Sri Lanka that standardised the rules for the game. The game spread to other African countries in the 1970s. South Africa was prohibited from competing internationally from 1969 to 1994 due to apartheid. In the United States, Netball's popularity also increased during the 1970s, particularly in the New York area, and the United States of America Netball Association was created in 1992. The game also became popular in the Pacific Island nations of the Cook Islands, Fiji and Samoa during the 1970s. Netball Singapore was created in 1962, and the Malaysian Netball Association was created in 1978.

In 1963, the first international tournament was held in Eastbourne, England. Originally called the World Tournament, it later became known as the World Netball Championships. Following the first tournament, one of the organisers, Miss R. Harris, declared, England could learn from the mistakes in the past from the empty stands at Eastbourne. To get the right publicity and the right status desired, the game must emerge from the school playground. Netball should be part of a sports centre where social events could also be held. The World Netball Championships have been held every four years since then. The World Youth Netball Championships started in Canberra in 1988 and have been held roughly every four years since. In 1995, the International Olympic Committee recognized the International Federation of Netball Associations. Three years later Netball debuted at the 1998 Commonwealth Games in Kuala Lumpur. Other international competitions also emerged in the late 20th century, including the Nations Cup and the Asian Netball Championship. Now we know!!

Youth Work

If you wish to explore this idea further, contact David Knight via the Expression of Interest form at the end of this Bulletin

North Baddesley like most towns and villages would benefit greatly from having a pool of Youth Workers and Youth Support Workers. This project will be assisted by 'No Limits' who will present 'Introduction to Youth Work' and career and qualification progression in 2022. Just fill out the Expression of Interest form at the end of this Bulletin to secure your place.

IT skills teaching and support

So, what is youth Work?

Youth workers guide and support young people in their personal, social and educational development to help them reach their full potential

Lead & encourage debates & discussion.

Encourage teach and support via sports

As a youth worker, you'll set up, organise, and run community skills and learning programmes aimed at young people aged between 11 and 25. Through these programmes, you'll help them to explore and understand their ideas, values, and beliefs, building their confidence and life skills so that they can make a successful transition to adulthood.

You may work in a variety of settings, such as:

- colleges
- faith-based groups
- schools & youth centres.

Detached work in and with communities

You may also deliver targeted street work to engage with high-risk young people.

Youth work relies on voluntary engagement by young people, and you will need to build a relationship based on trust in order to support and empower them.

Responsibilities

You'll need to:

- assess the needs of young people to correctly plan and deliver programmes related to areas such as health, fitness, smoking, drugs, gangs, violence, relationships, and bullying

Set up culinary and healthy eating projects

- set up and run arts-based activities, community/environmental projects, residential activities, outdoor education, and sporting activities
- develop a relationship with young people based on respect and trust, ensuring they have a safe place to develop their identity and place in society
- establish boundaries and challenge inappropriate behaviour
- support young people in different settings, including outreach work

Use music as a learning tool

- mentor, coach, and support individuals, encouraging greater social inclusion
- set targets for progression and regularly monitor and review the quality of the local youth work provision

Encourage creativity and business enterprise

- work in partnership with families and other key people in the young person's life, as well as with professionals from other organisations involved with young people such as social care, health, police, education, youth offending teams and local authorities, in order to build a strong support network

- attend and contribute to multi-agency meetings, bringing together practitioners from different sectors as part of a 'team around the family' (TAF) approach

Encourage creativity and business enterprise

- attend regular training and development opportunities to maintain an up-to-date knowledge of safeguarding, health and safety, and local policy developments
- recruit, train and manage staff, including volunteers
- undertake administrative tasks, maintain effective recording systems, and respond to queries
- work with parents and community groups to win support for improved provision and act as an advocate for young people's interests
- identify and pursue sources of funding for projects to improve services and/or resources for young people
- draw up business plans, manage budgets, write reports and make formal presentations to funding bodies.

Salary

- Youth support workers (those who are not fully qualified professional youth workers) can expect to earn between £18,117 and £28,017.
- Salaries rise incrementally for experienced professional youth workers with a recommended range of £24,636 to around £41,575.

Set up and run outdoor adventure activities

- Salaries for local authority youth service managers vary according to the size of the authority and responsibility of the post but are usually in excess of £40,000.

What does a youth worker do?

Youth Workers work directly with children and young people, helping them to build life skills, develop healthy relationships and make decisions that are right for them. Youth workers are often involved in projects and activities such as sport and performing arts.

NORTH BADDESLEY

Bedeslei (xi cent.); Baldisle (xiv cent.).

The parish of North Baddesley, in the New Forest division of the county, lies on open heath country, north and south of the road from Romsey to Portsmouth.

Its total area, including the almost detached portion in the south-west, is nearly 2,584 acres, and its population in 1901 was 245. This isolated portion, together with neighbouring parts of the parishes of Romsey Extra and Nursling, was in 1897 formed into the new civil parish of Rownhams, whose population is 498. The land is well wooded, but here and there are wide stretches of bog-land.

The soil is not fertile, and is sand or loam with a subsoil for the most part clay or gravel, and although a small amount of wheat, oats, and barley is raised, the greater part of the land is given over to woods and plantations. (fn. 1) Tanners Brook flows in a southerly direction through Rownhams, and a small tributary of the Itchen forms the eastern boundary of the parish for a short distance.

The main road from Romsey to Botley crosses the south-west corner of the parish, and a branch from it communicates with North Baddesley village, which consists of a few small cottages scattered on either side of the road.

Approaching from the west, the manor-house lies to the south, standing a little way back from the road. Farther on, to the north, is the small parish church of St. John, and opposite to it the vicarage, on the site of the preceptory of the Hospitallers. Part of the house is probably mediaeval, incorporating some remains of the preceptory.

The village of Rownhams, in the extreme south of North Baddesley parish, consists of a single street of small houses. In the centre of the village is the church of St. John the Baptist, built in 1856, and the vicarage and elementary schools, built at the same time by Mrs. Colt, are near to one another. St. John's Convalescent Home, erected in 1876 by Lady Helena Trench and the Rev. R. F. Wilson, M.A., lies to the north of Rownhams, where are several fine residences. Rownhams House, a large brick mansion occupied by Mrs. Keates, stands in a park of 40 acres, and Lords Wood, the residence of General Sir Neville Chamberlain, lies in the south.

There is a small recreation ground in the parish granted when North Baddesley common was inclosed in 1867, (fn. 2) and sixteen small garden allotments let to the poor at 1s. 6d. each, given to the parish at the same time.

Mr. Tankerville Chamberlayne, lord of the manor, collects the tithes in North Baddesley and Rownhams, and has the tithe map in his possession. The following place-names occur:—Nutburn, Scrag Hill, and Zionshill, where is a farm reputed to have belonged to the knights of St. John. (fn. 3)

MANOR

The manor of NORTH BADDESLEY, assessed at two hides at the time of the Domesday Survey, belonged to Ralph de Mortimer, holding of the king in chief, (fn. 4) and the overlordship rights passed down through the Mortimer family (fn. 5) until they lapsed at the close of the fourteenth century. (fn. 6) The manor was probably alienated to the Knights Hospitallers before 1167, for, at this date, they were settled at Baddesley, (fn. 7) where was a cell belonging to the preceptory of the knights at Godsfield. (fn. 8)

Mortimer. Barry or and azure a chief or with two pales between two gyrons azure therein and a scutcheon argent over all. Before the year 1365, however, the latter migrated to North Baddesley and made that preceptory their head quarters. (fn. 9)

At the time of the dissolution of the monasteries, in 1536, Baddesley, still held by the Knights of St. John, and valued at £131 14s. 1d., (fn. 10) fell to the crown, but was immediately afterwards granted to Sir Thomas Seymour, the king's brother-in-law, who, nine years later, was tried and beheaded for high treason. (fn. 11)

This placed Baddesley once more at the disposal of the crown, and Edward VI, in 1552, granted the preceptory with its appurtenances to Sir Nicholas Throckmorton. (fn. 12)

The Knights Hospitallers. Gules a cross of Malta argent. On the accession of Queen Mary Baddesley was restored to the Knights Hospitallers, (fn. 13) but was confiscated by Elizabeth, who, in 1558, restored the manor to John Foster, who had purchased it from Sir Nicholas Throckmorton in 1553. (fn. 14)

John died in 1576, leaving as his heir his son Andrew, the estate being charged with annuities payable to his daughter Jane, wife of William Fleming, and to Thomas Sharpe and Margaret his wife. (fn. 15)

Andrew was succeeded in 1595 by his son John, (fn. 16) who dying without issue in 1597, left the estate to his brother Barrow, (fn. 17) who, before 1600, conveyed the manor and rectory of North Baddesley to his cousin Thomas Fleming, the king's solicitor-general, son of his aunt Jane, wife of William Fleming. (fn. 18) He and his son Thomas sold the estate in 1603 to John More, serjeant-at-law, (fn. 19) whose heir John died seised in 1622, (fn. 20) leaving no children, and on the partition of his property between his sisters, Dowsabella wife of Samuel Dunch, and Anne wife of Edward Hooper, Baddesley fell to the share of the former. (fn. 21)

Dunch. Sable a chevron between three castles argent.

Samuel was succeeded by his son John Dunch, who died in 1668, and by his grandson Major Dunch, successively. On the death of the latter in 1679, his son Wharton inherited Baddesley, and he, dying without issue in 1705, left the estate to his sister Jane, wife of Francis Keck. (fn. 22) By the will of the latter, North Baddesley Manor passed to Anthony Chute, (fn. 23) and his brother and heir John Chute, of the Vine, sold it to Thomas Dummer, of Cranbury, in 1767, for £5,500. (fn. 24)

His extensive property in Hampshire was left by his will, in 1781, to Mr. Thomas Chamberlayne, who subsequently married Mr. Dummer's widow. On the death of her third husband, Sir Nathaniel Dance-Holland, in 1811, the estates passed to the Chamberlayne family, (fn. 25) and they are now held by Mr. Tankerville Chamberlayne of Cranbury Park, Winchester, who is lord of the manor. (fn. 26)

CHURCH

The church of ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST has a chancel and nave of equal width, 15 ft. 9 in., the chancel being 19 ft. 10 in. long to the screen, and the nave 33 ft. 2 in.; at the west of the nave is a small tower, 5 ft. 10 in. by 5 ft. 2 in. within the walls, and over the south doorway of the nave is a porch. The chancel has been rebuilt at some time in the fifteenth century, and made of the same width as the nave, the junctions with the older masonry being clearly to be seen. The chancel walls are built with good-sized pieces of Bonchurch or some kindred stone, and have a chamfered plinth at the base, which is wanting in the nave. There are no architectural details in the nave earlier than the latter part of the fourteenth century, but the north and south walls may well be older than that time, and it is to be noted that in the porch floor, near the north-east angle, is part of an octagonal shaft of twelfth-century date ornamented with zigzag, perhaps a relic of the former church. Its present position, nearly buried in the floor, may be due to its re-use as the pedestal of a holy-water stone here. The west wall of the nave and the west tower were rebuilt in 1674, as appears from a stone panel in the south wall of the latter bearing this date, with the initials of Major Dunch and the arms of Dunch impaling More.

The first book of the registers runs from 1682 to 1816, the marriages not being entered in this book after 1754. The churchwardens' accounts are complete from 1674, the building of the west tower being noted in the first year.

ADVOWSON

The church of North Baddesley is mentioned in the Domesday Survey; but, like the manor, it had passed into the possession of the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem before 1167, (fn. 27) although no particulars of the grant can be found. The church remained with the Knights Hospitallers until the dissolution of the monasteries, and was granted with the manor to Sir Thomas Seymour in 1539. (fn. 28) Since that date the history of the advowson is identical with that of North Baddesley Manor (q.v.).

Photography

Photography is the art of capturing light with a camera, usually via a digital sensor or film, to create an image. With the right camera equipment, you can even photograph wavelengths of light invisible to the human eye, including UV, infrared, and radio.

The first permanent photograph was captured in 1826 (some sources say 1827) by Joseph Nicéphore Niépce in France
